SILVER QUESTION IN CONGRESS.

Majority Senate Report on Montana Senators.

Strike of the Liverpool Dock

Proceeding - of Congress

Washington, March 24.-A report of a majority of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections upon the Montana election case was submitted to-day by Hoar. The majority gives at the outset the circumstances surrounding the election of Saunders and Powers by a Republican Legislature, and of Maginnis and Clark by the Court House Legislature. This double choice arose from the fact that the State Senate was equally divided, and both sides claimed a majority in the House by reason of two sets of Representives of five each claiming election from Silver Bow county.

Hoar, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, reported four resolutions in the cases of persons claiming The report says the case turned upon seats as Senators from Montana, two the question, which of these two sets declaring Clark and Maginnis not enwas entitled to seats as Representatitled to seats and the other two detives from Silver Bow county. The Ohio Still Rising

CINCINNATI, March 24.-This morning the Ohio river measures 56 feet 10 inches, and was rising two inches an hour with more rain. A sixty-foot river seems inevitable, but with the outlook for more rain, puts a most serious aspect on affairs. Most active work is in progress to remove goods from the river front. Cellars are already vacated and the first floors in many houses will soon be invaded by the flood. In 1883 the river reached 66 feet 4 inches; and in 1884, the highest flood ever known, measured 71 feet. Many families in tenement houses and cottages along the river front will be compelled to go into the upper stories or vacate their quarters entirely. The railroads have been compelled to abandon the Central Union depot and establish temporary depots.

They had believed that the Scott act would not be renewed, and that, with its expiration at the end of the year, exclusion would cease. They have only just awoke to their mistake. But it is the recent vigilant execution of local health and police laws that is troubling them most. It is now obvious, their disclaimers to the contrary notwithstanding, that the Six Companies were pecuniarily interested in the vices of their countrymen. With the closing up of the shrines, the occupation of Demetrius was in danger. The Companies are making it clear that with the closing of the gambling dens, the lottery games, the opium joints and the houses of shame, their profits are in like manner involved. They complain that, for the present, business in Chinatown is at a standstill. In this condition of things they have but little to do but to meet and discuss the situation. There is good reason to believe that they are considerably disheartened. They say that since the late Hall McAllister's retirement from active business they have never been well advised. Nothing but mistakes, they allege, have been made from that day to this. It is an open secret that the Chinese Consulate no longer enjoys their confidence and is permitted but little participation in their affairs.

Last week a high official got roaring drunk, and was taken from a brothel to the city prison. The matter was subsequently hushed up and kept from the knowledge last nail in the coffin which encloses the Consulate's influence. The ordinance. The Six Companies will have to accept, not dictate,

POWERFUL MEMORIES.

Prodigies Whose Existence Is Too Well Authenticated to Be Doubted.

There was a Corsican boy who could rehearse forty thousand words, whether sense or nonsense, as they were dictated and then repeat them in the reversed order without making a single mistake. A physician, about sixty years ago, could repeat the whole of Paradise Lost without a mistake, although he had not read it for twenty years. Euler, the great mathematician, when he became blind could repeat the whole of Virgil's Æneid, and could remember the first line and the last line on every page of the particular edition which he had been accustomed to read before he became blind. One kind of retentive memory may be considered as the result of sheer work, a determina-tion toward one particular achievement without reference either to cultivation or to memory on other subjects.

This is frequently shown by persons in humble life in regard to the Bible. An old beggar men at Stirling, khown about fifty years ago as "Blind Alick," afforded an instance of this. He knew the whole of the Bible by heart, inso-much that, if a sentence was read to of the press, but it is proving the him, he could name the book, chapter and verse; or, if the book, chapter and verse were named, he could give the exact words. A gentleman, to test him, Companies have been considering the Bingham ordinance, and have issued orders that it is to be disregarded, but that the Chinese are to be found, but at the same time pointed out the verbal error. The same gentleman asked him to repeat the or removed, and then sue the city ninetieth verse of the seventh chapter for damages. The suits are to be entered in the Federal Courts. If the officials will keep on doing their duty, there will be no necessity for resorting to the Bingham order to give his memory exercise, he was in the habit daily of reciting six hundred verses from different lan-guages.—Toronto Globe.

The way the editor of the Lyon County Times, who was a member of the Nevada Legislature which passed the lottery bill, continues to attempt to criticize those not in the ring, has a tendency to strengthen the suspicion that his vote on the above measure was influenced by promises, which the defeat of the "job" rendered it impossible for the management to carry out,

OUR COLUMN

These Are the Books

We Are Giving Away

This book contains 480 pages; is eight and one-half inches long, six inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy paper and is handsomely bound, with embossed cover and gilt-lettered back.

It is different from all other works ever published. First—It teaches those who have it how to tell what the matter is when a person gets sick.

All similar books tell what to do if you know what the disease is. This book tells you HOW TO DETECT THE DISEASE, and then what to do for it.

No other Book Published

Second-When a person is really attacked by a dangerous disease, it enables you to know the fact, and in such cases its advice is: "Send for a competent physician at once." But in all ordinary cases, such as can be easily cured, it gives full directions for treatment. Third-It is not confined to the practice used by any one class of physicians; but it gives, separately, and for each disease, the methods used by each of the different schools of medicine, and in ALL CASES the PRE-SCRIPTIONS ARE MADE by the MOST EMINENT MEN id their respective modes of practice. This makes the work specially suited to the needs of every family, no matter what medical school they prefer.

No other Book Published Does this.

TESTIMONIALS:

Having examined the advance sheets of the work entitled "Our Family Physician," I can say that I find it accurate in its descriptions of discusses and reliable in its ther-aputical department.

I have examined the advance sheets of "Cur Family Physician." It giv. s me pleasure o recommend the work as correct in its mode of freatment of disease, and it de-serves wide circulation. J.F. COOK, M. D., Prof. ssor in Burnett's Medical Col-lege, Chicago.

After examining the publication "Our Family Physician" I can fully endorse the opinions expressed of its merits by the above gentlemen. R. A. GUNN, M.D. Professor of the Burnett Medical College.

I hereby certify that I have examined a work entitled "Our Family Physician," and find it to be correct in its diagnosis, and in my opinion, worthy of the counfidence of the public. H. S. HANN, M.D.

The book contains a valuable chapter of symptoms, which will aid wonderfully in diagnosing diseases, and the proper remedis are given for Allopathic, Homeopathic, Eelectic, Hydropathic and Herbal trealments.

We have a number of the books on hand, and we invite inspection.

on hand, and we invite inspection.

There are three chapters in the "Family Physician" which are worthy of special mention, namely, those on "Diseases of Women," "seases of Infants," and "Care of the sick,"

The first of these is a model of its kind. It is chaste in jianguage, contains no disgusting pictures for children to happen on and be overcuriens about, and taken altogether is the most practical, sen ible and straight forward treatise upon this delicate subject that has ever been printed.

This chapter alone is worth many times the cost of the book to every mother, even if it had to be purchased at its regular price.

The other chapters referred to are equally well written and valuable, see "Our Plan" on 4th page.

It is customary with newspapers to give premiums to new subscribers only; but the publishers of the Werkly Gazerie mean to revise this oi! rule; they intend of oo as well, at le st, by their old subscribers—those who have stood by the paper in years past, and paid their money for it "right straightealong." We propose to show our apprecation of these friends in a substantal manner; and as the premium to be offered is expensive, and as our express object in offering it is to increase our list of subscribers, we will ask every old subscribers who may renew his subscription, thus receiving the valuable premium, to constitute himself a missionary, and aid us in securing at least ONE new subscriber. Co ne, and bring us one new name and get a book that will be ofincalculable value to you.

RENO REDUCTION WORKS.

Efforts of Asylum Commissioners to Cloud the Title.

The Virginia Enterprise says: That the destruction of the Reno Reduction Works was a serious loss not only to Reno but to the State will be readily understood when it is known that one mine owner of Humboldt county had recently contracted for the treatment of 5,000 tons of ore already extracted. This mine, but one of many yielding ore requiring complicated process of working, will have to depend upon other States for a bullion yield until the works are rebuilt. The management was prepared, when the fire destroyed the property, to successfully handle the most refractory or the freest-nilling ore, and numerous dis-tricts will languish until operations are resumed, provided an early resumption is promised, as the miners can better afford to wait a reasonable time than to pay the heavy expense of distant transportation.

The resumption is, however, probable, as it seems to depend upon the decision of the contest which the State has forced upon the company by cutting into the dam and lowering the water. With the title to this water relieved from attack and their use of the same relieved from Larassing in-fringement, there is scarcely a doubt as to the early rebuilding of the works, and that the case will be decided for the company can scarcely be doubted. The enterprise is so closely connected with general Nevada interests that re-newed work is really a matter of publie concern. Though the loss was considerable, there is much valuable property that will not have to be re-placed, and the energy of the members of the company will not permit opera-tions to flag when the assurance of immunity from further interference with the water justifies renewed ex-

DEADLY WILD PARSNIP.

Which Nearly Costs the Lives of Four Children. Last evening about 6 o'clock Drs. Phillips and Mullin were called to attend the four young children of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Toler, who had been taken suddenly and violently ill. A hurried diagnosis of the several cases satisfied the physicians that the little ones were dangerously ill from having eaten a quantity of wild parsnip which they found along a ditch near the N., C. & O. depot. An antidote was instantly administered, and the children were saved, though tor a time it was extremely doubtful whether two of the little ones could be raised. At the expiration of about three hours the medicine administered had neutralized the poison and the children were declared out of danger.

It seems that where the Toler family had formerly resided in California the children had been in the habit of digging and eating a root which they called "cocoanut," but which was pre-sumably what is known as "Indian

[Communicated.]

EDITOR GAZETTE: Commenting on the Journal's item in Sunday morning's paper on the "glove contest," I would suggest that the safest place for the "innocent third party," who wishes to escape the "knives, pistols and tomahawks," would be in the bosom of his family. If there were no "third party" to witness the fiisticuff, there would be little encourage-ment for the brutal prize-fighter to show his skill, nor would there be any need for the "601" or the "tar pot."

It looks ratner inconsistent that we are obliged to close our public library for want of funds to cover expense when we are able to support a "glove (high-toned(?) name contest" prize-fighting) every week, to say nothing of the twenty or more saloons which are doing a thriving business. Had our generous-hearted citizens con-tributed as liberally toward the library fund as they did for witnessing the prize-fight, we would not be obliged to close the only respectable resort our young men have where they can spend sant and profitable evening, free from the evil influences of the saloon, gambling house and slugging ring.

Is Reno in a prosperous condition morally? Decidedly no.

A. J. Davis and Pat Key went up into the Inyo mountains about three weeks ago prospecting. They have found a vein of galena ore that runs from eight inches to 18 inches in thickness. The ore carries 120 ounces silver per ton and about 80 per cent. This makes the ore worth about $172 per ton. For two months' work they will take out at least 10 tons of the ore, worth $1,720. Deducting from this the cost of packing, freight and working the ore—say $350—and the two men will have $1,370 for their two months' work. Officials Indicted.

A San Diego, Cal., dispatch of the 22d inst. says: The Grand Jury of this county has created a sensation by finding indictments against nine prominent county officials. Among these are John R. Aitken, Judge of Superior Court of Department No. 1, on a charge of felony, and D. H. Horne, foreman of the last Grand Jury, on two charges of perfury. The indictment against Judge Aitken charges him with having mutilated and falsified the indepent roll in the case of fied the judgment roll in the case of The People vs. Wellington. Four arrests have already been made.

Short of Supplies

The New Era, published at Alturas, Modoc county, Cal., says: Not a pound of sugar nor a drop of coal oil for sale in the town. We are getting pretty hard run for the necessities of life, but, thanks awfully, the supply of tobacco and "bitters" bids fair to hold out till the roads get dry. Our mer-chants ought to lay in at least six months' supplies in the fall of the year in this country.

BINGO, THE FIRE-DOG. Some of His Many Exploits-How

He Died. Bingo was exceedingly black. Eyes, skin, hair, every thing about Bingo, except his disposition, was of the most somber hue. He had the most charming qualities as an offset to his funereal coloring. He was intelligent, he was kind, was devoted to his vocation. Now, this description is a history in itself, and if one only adds to it that Bingo died in the full prime of his powers, it would seem a Rembrandt portrait of him, with powerful contrasts of light and shade. But to make the history of Bingo more appealing to human sympathy, some of the vicissitudes of his career should be set forth. Virtues are nothing if they are not exercised, and the action of life is the grindstone which rubs them smooth.

Bingo was a dog.

But such a dog! Both his parents were
French, se, according to the law of ca-His mamma was a trick-dog named Frou-Frou, that had been trained by a New York fireman named John Farley. She belonged to a very elegant young gentleman, whose occupation in life was to amuse himself, one of the hardest things in the world to do when it is the only employment which one has.

This young man thought that Frou-Frou would contribute to his efforts to make life amusing if she were taught several things which no dog, not even a French poodle, would ever pick up by itself. So the young gentleman brought Frou-Frou to John Farley and asked him to educate her in the very highest fashion possible to a young, aristocratic Farley was a great instructor of dogs. He was very successful in his methods, having pretty well solved the educational problem, so far as dogs are concerned. He was stationed at the water-tower on Thirteenth street, and he used to keep From From in the room where he slept, which was also her school-room.

But it is not necessary to dwell at length on the education of Frou-Frou, since this is the history of her son Bingo. It is enough to say that after her course was completed she was one ment to the young gentleman in quest of amusement. She has been mentioned only to show that Bingo had an ancestry of which no dog need have been shamed, and to account for the sphere of life in which Bingo achieved distinc-

Bingo to the fireman when he was a very young and utterly ignorant little trained him with the greatest care.

Bingo became a fire-dog. est in conflagrations. Although there are not many of these dogs to-day in the New York engine-houses, they used to be a common feature of these houses. These dogs take instinctively to their calling. They are not specially trained to their vocation, but they fall into the ways of fire-dogs naturally. Farley taught Bingo many tricks and accomplishments, but where fires were oncerned the dog picked up every thing by himself. In the engine-houses the norses are kept in stalls by the side of the engine. Every thing is arranged so that there will be no delay in starting off for the fire the moment the alarm is sounded. The harness hangs from the ceiling, high enough from the ground to allow the horse to come under it. The moment the alarm sounds the horses start with the greatest alacrity, spring from their stalls, go to the engine and put themselves in position to be charnessed. By the time they are there the firemen are sliding down the smooth, round pole which goes from the ground floor of the engine-house up to the room where they sleep.

The harness is dropped on the horse, the buckles made fast in a jiffy. The driver vaults into his seat and in a modriver vaults into his seat and in a moment more the horses are galloping full tilt through the busy streets, the gong clanging constantly to warn the vehicles and pedestrians to get out of the way. It is a most exciting sight to see the horses bounding along, the heavy engine rattling over the stones, while the brass clang of the gong is incessantly

Bingo soon determined what his Bingo soon determined what his function was, and he acquitted himself of it with the most ardent zeal. This, of course, was after he had grown up and had reached maturity. When he was a wabbly little puppy, and when hair was clipped so that he looked like an African lion. It was cut very close in places, but was left thick around his shoulders and head, with a tuft on the end of his tail. He had little armlets of his own hair on his legs and a little clump on his haunches. His black, shiny eyes glistened from beneath the silky hair that hung over them, and he looked so keen and quick that one felt obliged to be very clear and precise with him, because he had the air of not being able to lose any time in foolishness. Bang! bang! bang! would go the gong. The horses would spring forward, trampling the floor with their sounding hoofs, and at the same moment Bingo's cheery bark was heard as he scurried around in mad anxiety to get every body off all right to put out the fire. Oh, how important he felt when the alarm was given and he felt called on to contribute to the good of the community by his generous efforts!

After the engine had started out he tore along ahead of it about half a square, turning round now and then to see that it was following, and dodging around among the feet of the horses and the teams that he met. He barked all this time with a tremendous sense of his importance, as if proclaiming: "Clear the way, good folk! Clear the way! There is a fire and we are in a hurry to put it out." Bingo used to follow the men who went into the burning building, and would frequently make his way to the roof. It was his chief delight to get near the pipeman who held the nozzle of the hose-pipe and directed the discharge of the water upon the fire. Bingo seemed to feel that he was help ing to extinguish the flames when he was near the hose-pipe. Who could question his utility then? he was unselfish, he was faithful and he

When the fire was out he trotted back with the proudest air of complacency, and upon returning to the engine-house he would frisk around Farley as if courting attention and praise for his

But when his master would put Bingo through his paces and exhibit the whole round of his accomplishments to visitors, he was quite another animal. His relationship to the elegant Frou-Frou became apparent then. His wool was as fine as silk, and every morning he was washed and scrubbed and his beautiful hair combed.

He had around his neck a neat collar of russet leather with small spike-heads nine genealogy, Bingo, though born in it, and his name Bingo engraved the United States, was a French poodle. on a little silver plate. He looked quite a dandy, and his eyes shone like jet through the long, crinkly hair that hung over them.

Farley was very fond of Bingo; who could help being fond of such a bright, faithful, affectionate poodle as he was? You have been told at the start that Bingo was cut off in his beautiful prime Long before his legs began to get stiff, or his memory to fail him, Bingo died.

There was a certain fittingness in the manner of his taking off, because Bingo was, above all, a fire-dog. He was a trick-dog for the amusement of others, but he was a fire-dog through philanthropy and natural bent. His death occurred in this way:

One cold, bright night in December the alarm of fire sounded in the enginehouse. The horses sprang before the engine. There was the rush of firemen, but there occurred for some reason or other a moment's delay. Bingo was skipping around in great distress of mind at this hindrance. There was that fire burning and where was he?

As soon as the doors were opened he charged madly forward. Some one was in his way, however, and in dodging him he flung himself against a door-post. The shock was so great that he was of the best-educated poodles in Gotham, and she furnished a good deal of enjoyhoof with its iron shoe crushed down upon his side

Poor Bingo! When the engine had passed over him he feebly and painfully dragged himself toward one of the stalls for the horses. He was panting and once or twice he uttered a feeble whine. There was not one of those he loved ley's success with Frou-Frou, and beside most near at hand to comfort him. They paying the bill for her tuition, he gave were at the fire. He would never go to most near at hand to comfort him. They a fire again. He raised his head and looked around the familiar engine-house poodle. Farley accepted the puppy and with a sigh; then his head fell heavily to the ground and Bingo was dead. When they came back from the fire A fire-dog is one which lives in an and found the poor dog stiff and cold, engine-house and takes an active inter- a film over his jet-black eyes, the men felt bad enough, especially Farley. The lost poodle had lived a noble life-for a poodle-and had died in harness, which was somewhat of a consolation to those who mourned him. So poor Bingo was buried decently and his joyous bark was missed in the engine-house, where he is still remembered.—John J. a Becket, in Youth's Companion

WHAT THE MOON SAW.

One of Hans Christian Andersen's Pretti-est Little Stories. "Yesterday," said the moon to me, "I looked down upon a small court-yard surrounded on all sides by houses. In the court-yard sat a clucking hen with eleven chickens, and a pretty little girl was running and jumping around them. The hen was frightened and screamed and spread out her wings over the little brood. Then the girl's father came out and scolded her, and I glided away and thought no more of the matter.

"But this evening, only a few minutes ago, I looked down into the same court-yard. Every thing was quiet. But presently the little girl came forth again, crept quietly to the hen-house, pushed back the bolt, and slipped into the apartment of the hen and chickens. They cried out loudly and came fluttering down from their perches and ran about in dismay, and the little girl ran after them. I saw it quite plainly, for I looked through a hole in the house wall. I was angry with the willful child, and felt glad when her father came out and scolded her more violently than yesterday, holding her roughly by the arm. She held down her head function was, and he acquitted himself of it with the most ardent zeal. This, of course, was after he had grown up and had reached maturity. When he was a wabbly little puppy, and who later, he was a thoughtless, giddy young dog, he did not go to fires, but was fed and trained upstairs.

But he grew to be very strong, although he was never very large. His AMUSING ADVENTURE.

How Alexander Dumas Surprised an Ami-able Commis Voyageur.

Alexander Dumas, the French novelist and dramatist, was the hero of many amusing adventures. Once, when at the height of his popularity, he was importuned to become a commercial traveler because he was such a jolly, good fellow. The anecdote, as told by a Paris journal, is as follows: Some years ago a merchant of Lyons was re-turning from Paris to his natal city. In the same compartment with him sat a tall fellow, lively, talkative and full of gasconade, but, on the whole, the best and most amusing traveling companion one could wish. On alignting at Lyons the merchant, charmed by the talking, manner and gayety of his neighbor, exclaimed: "By Jove! sir, I am glad to have made your acquaintance. You are a good fellow! You are a charming fellow! Can't you talk, though! Come, let us make a trade, will you?

"Well, what kind of a trade?" "Come and dine with me; at dessert we will speak about it. I have an idea. Will you come?"

"Very well, but I will pay my share. insist upon it."

As you please. What an amazing fellow you are! Ah, but I like you!" Accordingly they took dinner together, during which the merchant offered the tall fellow a position as commercial traveler or drummer for his house; that was his idea. "You have just the qualities re quired," said the merchant. "You will make your way."

"But, my dear sir-" "Come, now, how do you live?"
"Pooh! on very little."

"Well, how much do you make in your branch?"

"From twenty thousand to thirty thousand francs. "Goodness sakes alive! But what do you do?" asked the other, disappoint-"Oh, I scribble on sheets of paper with a pen.

A DRUMMER'S RUSE.

His Lively Experience in a Disastrous Georgia Hurricane.

"Drummers are capable of doing some slick things when they want to. speaker was an ex-drummer. "I knew a young member of the 'profesh,'" he continued, addressing a Savannah News reporter, "who played a good one on a tobacco house in Savannah on one occa-

"A severe hurricane passed over the southwestern portion of Georgia, and the young drummer happened to be down in that section at the time. The firm here knew that he was there, and they were alarmed. They wired, but were unable to get a reply to any of their dispatches, as the lines in that section were on the ground. The tracks were washed and trains did not move for a week. The young drymmer, failing to get word from his house, and being unable to leave where he was stopping, fell in with a company of young men and had a royal big time. He had some prize sample cigars, and he opened box after box, and they were smoked up. He had a goo deal of premium chewing tobacco, an the country boys helped him chew it When the weed ended he was withou samples. During the excitement he did not stop to think in what a predicament he would be when he would start out with a score of empty grips. He 'stuck' by the town, enjoying himself with the boys, until toward the end of the week, when he received a dispatch from the house reading like this: 'Are you killed? Wire particulars.' It flashed in his mind to put up a pitiful story, and he sent them this: 'Not dead. Escaped with my life. Samples gone; send more.' It was a reat hit. The proprietors replenished the sample cases, and, in addition, sent their representative several boxes of fine Havanas for his own use.'

The young man made his rounds the extras and came into the city as fresh as you please, receiving the con-gratulations of friends and the firm.

THE AMERICAN BOY.

He Is Being Crowded Almost Entirely

What is to become of the boy if the present tendency to crowd him out of employment goes on? asked the New York Tribune. Messengers with beards seem to be growing more numerous all the time, and the elevator boy has been largely replaced by the elevator man. Cash boys, once common in the city, have given way to cash girls to a great extent. The uniformed, brassbuttoned call-boys at the hotels are still little more than a memory, and in their places are men. It is true there are newsboys about the entrance to the bridge, and other places where there are generally crowds of people, but newswomen and newsmen are competing with them in ever-increasing numbers. Uptown the newsdealer has virtually driven the boys out of the business. With bootblacks the story is the same. A few of them still pursue their calling, but grown Italians have seized hold of the best corners, and with their big arm-chairs easily take away the business of their youthful rivals. whose customers have to balance themselves on one leg against the sharp corner of the building. There are a few boy peddlers of shoestrings and handkerchiefs, but this occupation is far more appropriate to those who have arrived at years when an amble is the natural gait. On trains there are still many lads who go about distributing illustrated papers, light novels and boxes of candy, and then go about again collecting them, incidentally selling a few of the articles, but even here the men are getting ahead of them. Yes. what shall become of the boy is a serious question. If the present movement toward his displacement continues the only thing left for him to do will be to grow up and become a man, but un-fortunately this takes time.

A Subsequent Discovery. Archie de Veu (jealously)-Who was that scarecrow you just met on the Mabel Rlossom-That was an old tically); was he the ugliest man you could find?

Mabel Blossom (sweetly)—Yes; but that was before I met you, Archie.—

MISCELLANDOUS

Jenks bad a queer dream the other night. He thought he saw a prize-fighters' ring, and in the middle of it stood a doughty little champion who met and deliberately knocked over, one by one, a score or more of big, burly-looking fellows, as they advanced to the attack. Giants as they were in size, the valiant pigmy proved more than a match for them. It was all so funny that Jenks woke up laughing. He accounts for the dream by the fact that he had just come to the conclusion, after trying nearly every big, drastic pill on the market, that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or tiny Sugar-coated Granules, easily "knock out" and beat all the big pills hollow!
